Related Skills

- I can implement Data Warehouses through Microsoft Visual Studio's Integration Services (SSIS): Extract-Transform-Load (ETL).
- A frequent user of Stored Procedures and User-defined Functions to solve regularly used queries (TSQL). Actually S-Proc's and UDFs are my favorite tools in Database Development.
- Quite familiar and I have regularly used these technologies too: MS Office (Excel, Access, Word), PHP (phpMyAdmin), SPSS, both JSON and XML for encoding data from databases into flat or raw files.
- Highly disciplined professional of sober habits that observes corporate etiquette and a desire to learn both in formal and informal settings.
- I can implement Data Warehouses through Microsoft Visual Studio's Integration Services (SSIS).
- Easy person to communicate with - I am very trainable actually - and amazing interpersonal skills as well as excellent documentation skills for future use/reference and reporting.
- I am a great problem solver and fast thinker with huge passion for technology: I breath technology.

- A continual academic currently absorbing (plus entry level experience) of tools and languages used for data analysis - R, Excel, SQL, Python & Tableau.
- I find refuge in MS Excel to demonstrate and implement Data Cleansing, Data Visualization, Reporting, Pivoting Tables and even Dashboards.
- Knowledgeable in extracting and pre-processing data for analysis in OLAP Data Warehouses.
- Sharp statistical analysis practices as well as predictive analysis drawn from data sources and data patterns.
- Good programming skills in C++, Java, C# including web development languages: JavaScript, CSS, Bootstrap, HMTL5.
- I have designed and developed databases that help monitor municipal councils' properties they oversee, creating efficiency for the administration department.
